Message from the Trustees

We welcome two new Trustees to the TAC board and one returning member. At the Annual Dinner Meeting, Elaine Scarvelis agreed to another three-year term as Trustee and chairperson of the Education Committee. Karen Hakel and Jennifer Sader were nominated to Trustee positions and elected by unanimous votes by the membership to the Trustee class of 2021. There is one remaining open Trustee position in the 2021 class. If you are interested in serving as a Trustee please contact Rich Carle (rcarle2245@aol.com) or the TAC office.

At our June 12th board meeting, we will be voting for officers to serve for the next 12 months. Positions open are President and Treasurer. Any member who is interested in holding one of these positions or is willing to serve on any of the various committees is invited to attend this board meeting and submit their name. We have open positions on the Workshop, Auction, Gallery Exhibition and Heralding the Holiday committees.

As of May 29, we have 13 people signed up for Chris Leeper's Watercolor workshop scheduled for September 12-14, 2018. We have three slots left. If you want to take this excellent workshop, hurry and reserve your spot.

The next membership gathering will be the First Annual Membership BBQ to be held at the Club on August 22, 2018. The gathering will begin at 5:30 pm with dinner starting about 6:30 pm. Final details will be announced once everything is approved by the Metroparks.

Juror's comments Any artist who wants to exhibit their work must accept that the awards represent one person's evaluation. I suspect that all judges begin with a set of expectations and personal preferences. It's important, then, to get past those biases by closely inspecting every piece, not just those that command attention at first. This was certainly the case with this show. How does one compare a difficult subject with a masterful technique or a unique point of view? In the end, I hope I have chosen not only all of these in selected works but also a sense of the artist's personal commitment to creating a piece that is more than the sum of its parts. There are so many accomplished works here. Certainly all are to be commended. Judging, while difficult, has been a great pleasure.

Sincerely, Chris Rilling - May 18, 2018

The Pink Dress (Albertie-Marguerite Carré, later Madame Ferdinand-Henri Himmes, 1854–1935)

Artist: Berthe Morisot (French, 1841–1895). 1870

Berthe Morisot's mother supported her daughter's ambitions by allowing her a serious art education. During the 1860s, Morisot developed a close professional relationship with Edouard Manet. She showed regularly in the Paris Salon and exhibited with the Société Anonyme des Artistes-Peintres, Sculpteurs, Graveurs — a landmark event that would become known as the first exhibition of the Impressionists. Morisot achieved significant critical recognition during her lifetime, although 19th- and 20th-century critics focused on the “feminine” qualities of her work: intuitiveness, spontaneity, and delicacy. Her work was included in George Petit's International Exhibition in Paris as well as in Paul Durand-Ruel's exhibition of Impressionist painting in New York, both in 1887. Married to Eugène Manet (brother of Edouard Manet), Morisot had one daughter, Julie, whom she painted frequently and who provided the inspiration for her paintings documenting women's lives.
